MDL No. 172
Case No. CV-74-808-PH
(and related cases)
ORDER DENYING MOTION
TO FILE AMENDED COMPLAINT
IN INTERVENTION

RODNEY F. STICH filed a Motion to Intervene as Amicus Curiae in the above matter on the general grounds that, as a former employee of the Federal Aviation Administration, he had information that would be valuable in the trial and adjudication of the matter.

It was duly noticed to all parties, heard, and denied because Stich had no justiciable interest in the litigation.

He now has lodged with the Clerk as amended motion.

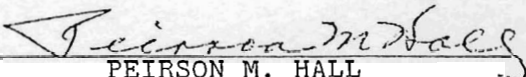

The order denying his previous motion did not allow time to file an amended motion or provide it was without prejudice. It was thus a final order.

That being so, the so-called "Amended Motion to Intervene as Amicus Curiae," with accompanying voluminous documents, is too late for "Filing," and the Clerk is ordered to "Lodge" it in the files.

Even though not entitled to be filed, the Court has

1 nevertheless examined it, and it still lacks the essential
2 ingredient which entitles one to be a "party" to an action,
3 i.e., there is no showing of a justiciable interest.
